Police chiefs accused of 'failures' to take action on Travellers

Halfon calls on Home Secretary to hold inquiry

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon this week called on the Government to hold an inquiry into the response by police and authorities to unauthorised Traveller encampments in the town.

Mr Halfon and Thurrock MP Jackie Doyle-Price have written a damning letter to Home Secretary Theresa May, left, listing what they consider the failures to tackle a "siege" of both towns by Travellers.

They accuse the Chief Constable of Essex Police Stephen Kavanagh of a "significant failure to uphold the law and deal with the problem" and question whether the county's police and crime commissioner, Nick Alston, was "upholding his public duty".

Both Harlow and Thurrock have had a large number of illegal encampments in the last year, including more than 70 in Harlow since October 2013.

The MPs say that in both their constituencies residents have reported incidents of mess and anti-social behaviour. More

Council unveils town's poppy tribute to The Fallen

A CARPET of knitted poppies to mark the centenary of the First World War has been unveiled at the Civic Centre in Harlow town centre.

The Knit to Remember project was launched in August and since then residents have created more than 1,500 flowers.

The project was the idea of Harlow Council chairman Ian Beckett, pictured above, and Harlow Art Trust.

"I'm delighted that this idea of linking creativity and remembrance has captured the imagination of the people of our town," said Cllr Beckett.

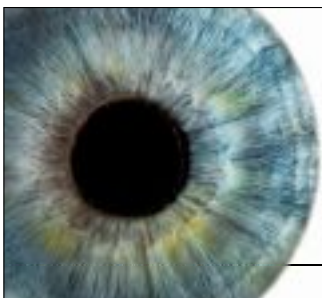

On Sunday the town will hold its annual Service of Remembrance to honour the men and women of the Armed Forces who have died in the service of their country.

The service, which will take place at the Nettleswell Cross memorial in the Town Park, is organised by the Royal British Legion and will begin at 10.45am.

Harlow MP Robert Halfon will join local dignitaries and representatives of the town's service organisations who will lay poppy wreaths at the foot of the memorial.

On Armistice Day (November 11) a two-minute silence will be observed outside the Civic Centre, followed by a small service.

Police believe sex attack suspect is still in Harlow

POLICE investigating an attempted rape of an elderly woman in Harlow believe the man they want to question about the incident is still in the town.

This week they issued a new appeal for witnesses and urged people to look again at an e-fit image of the suspect, left, based on a description given by the 65-year-old victim.

The woman was sexually assaulted as she was walking along Southern Way at 6am on Sunday, September 28.

Her attacker approached her and began talking to her, telling her he was homeless and from Romania, before pushing her into bushes and assaulting her.

He is described as white, in his mid-20s, 5ft 4in, of small to medium build with short dark hair. At the time of the incident he was wearing a blue checked shirt and light trousers.

Anyone who thinks they know the identity of the man in the e-fit image with information is asked to contact police at the West Sexual Offences Investigation Team on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Mother's fight for test for life-threatening condition

GEMMA GARDNER

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AN inspirational mother is urging the Government to screen babies for a rare condition that has left her unable to walk without support for more than 20 years.

Mother-of-two Gemma Holtby, of Potter Street, Harlow, was diagnosed with the very rare metabolic condition VLCAD after giving birth to her second son.

The condition, which currently has no known cure, left the former nurse unable to walk and her husband Adam, 28, her full-time carer.

"Life can be cruel sometimes," said Gemma. "I miss out on a lot that a mum should do as I can't do it, we don't have a prognosis just take one day at a time. My husband does a lot for the kids and I miss out."

Three weeks after giving birth to their second son Liam by emergency caesarean in November 2011 she started suffering flu-like symptoms.

But despite plenty of rest the symptoms persisted and she was diagnosed as suffering from a water infection. She was prescribed antibiotics and at first felt better. But then she started to experience weakness in her legs and was unable to stand unaided.

The former nurse was rushed to hospital where doctors initially thought she had suffered a stroke before discovering dangerously high levels of an enzyme called creatine kinase (CK) in her blood.

"Normal levels of CK are between one and 175 and mine was 6,000," she said.

Gemma was given steroids to treat the muscle weakness and after eight months, six further attacks and painful genetic testing, she was diagnosed with VLCAD. She is currently one of only four people in the UK diagnosed with the condition.

Symptoms of the genetic condition usually

What is VLCAD?

VLCAD, or very long-chain acyl-CoA dehydrogenase deficiency, is a condition that prevents the body from converting certain fats to energy. Signs and symptoms typically appear during infancy or early childhood and can include low blood sugar, lack of energy and muscle weakness. Affected individuals are also at risk from serious complications such as liver abnormalities and life-threatening heart problems.

Problems related to VLCAD deficiency can be triggered by periods of fasting, illness, exercise, stress and trauma.

wheelchair when she goes out.

Gemma, who takes various medications every day as well as high-carb drinks, is able to complete some day-to-day activities like washing. Adam has recently been able to return to part-time work.

"My six-year-old Jamie helps out with things," said Gemma. "When I'm in bed suffering badly he will bring things up to me and help his daddy. He's a good boy and dealing with so much."

"My levels vary but as it's high on a daily basis, muscle breakdown is happening all the time and this is why I'm so weak and suffer pain plus severe fatigue."

Gemma has only been able to leave the house once in the past month.

She added: "Adam has to help me with my everyday life. A funny part to this is if I need Liam I stamp on the floor upstairs to get his attention."

Gemma has launched a petition with Laura Linford from Barnsley, who lost her second son Jack to VLCAD four weeks ago and Marie Mowat from Bristol, who has a boy with VLCAD.

They are calling on the Government to add VLCAD to the list of conditions screened with the newborn heel prick test. Currently only the less severe MMCAD and SCAD are tested for. To begin from birth or develop in adolescence.

"I've had it from birth but the symptoms weren't recognised. I would get aches from exercise as a teenager but doctors just put it down to growing pains."

A year later, in November 2012, Gemma and her family were forced to move to a specially adapted property.

"I will never forget that day," said Gemma. "My husband had to carry me to toilet because I couldn't walk."

The stress of the move brought on an attack and her CK levels reached a life-threatening high of 58,000. Since then she has to use a

Councillors were right to turn down M&S store plan

SIR Now that we know the facts surrounding Marks and Spencer's decision to relocate from the town centre, the refusal by Harlow Council's planning committee to grant permission for a new shop at the Queensgate retail park was clearly the right one.

We applaud the committee for putting the interests of the residents of Harlow before the corporate interests of M&S, clearly demonstrated by the company's refusal to consider opening a Simply Food outlet in the currently empty Little Walk.

It is something that would be of huge benefit to the town's retail heart and would give M&S the profitable outlet they understandably need. It appears the company's decision is based either on inflexible management mindset or corporate pique.

The choice of Queensgate was always ill-considered and flawed. Anyone who knows and uses it is aware how tight parking is already and it is almost impossible to use at weekends and public holidays, quite inadequate to cope with a major influx of new drive-in customers.

Add to this the near gridlock conditions on Edinburgh Way at busy times and weekends that already make using the retail parks difficult, together with a total lack of public transport into the area – depriving their many elderly and non-car customers access to a major retailer – makes the choice of location unsupportable.

What a shame that MP Robert Halfon and his supporters have chosen to make what is an important community and human matter the subject of petty party politics. The real losers here, let us not forget, are the excellent and loyal staff whose friendly and tirelessly helpful service will be hugely missed by all their many regular customers.

John and Susan W Boothe
Westfield, Harlow

Town centre on the brink

SIR So Harlow Council tries to force M&S to open its new store in the town centre and as a result is now responsible for job losses and less to attract people to Harlow.

It seems they do not have the interests of those who they are meant to represent at heart. Harlow slowly dies under their control.

If M&S needs to move out of the town then we need to understand their reasons and then try to fix them in order to stop more businesses doing the same, not try to force their hand.

I'm sure the council will increase parking costs and shop rents, not understanding the balance that needs to be achieved in order to bring back customers, shops and other businesses to our town.

Thank God for Robert Halfon, who actually speaks sense and does seem to have business savvy, unlike our council. We need more people like him who understand the needs and wants of Harlow residents and businesses, have some idea of how business works and ultimately can bring Harlow back from the brink of death.

Is service value for money?

SIR Is Harlow Council's decent homes project delivering on its promise to deliver

This week's photo was taken by gardener Simon Clarke, of Felmongers, Harlow. "This is a Brimstone butterfly taken in a garden at Gilston Park," he writes. "They are not normally seen this time of year but came out for the mini heatwave last Friday."

If you have taken a photo which you would like to feature in our Photo of the Week section, email a high resolution copy in JPEG format, along with a description of your photo and details of when and where it was taken to star@hertsessexnews.co.uk. Include your name and address and insert 'Photo of the Week' in the subject line.

new kitchens, bathrooms and boilers to its tenants by next April? More importantly, are the contractors delivering modern homes with a good and competent repair service? Is that service value for money?

Moreover, is Kier Harlow providing tenants with a good and competent repair service? I continue to hear stories of poor workmanship and excessive delays in completing the planned works.

Unfortunately, I have serious doubts that the proposed planned works under this project will be delivered by next April.

If the contractors do not reach their set targets, will the council impose surcharges on them and compensate tenants?

I sense Kier Harlow considers tenants should be grateful for the repair services they receive. Indeed, I get the clear impression they believe they are doing the tenants a favour by just turning up on time.

Is this a harsh appraisal of their service to the tenants of Harlow? I suppose it could be unless of course you have a painter that turns up and says he doesn't have enough paint, disappears for two hours, returns with no extra paint to complete the job and then can't explain why his colleagues have closed the job and registered it as completed.

The questions I ask of councillors is how often are jobs recorded as completed and closed by Kier Harlow before they have been and how does that effect the payment scheme to Kier? Moreover, what checks are made by the council to confirm that the work has been completed before payment is made?

Hopefully, councillors will investigate these issues and report back to tenants on their findings.

Horse hazard on common

SIR For several years horses have been grazed on Harlow Common but of late this activity has been on a commercial scale with as many as 30 animals grazing there at one time.

One of the consequences of these horses being constantly moved and retethered is that much of the common is not fit for walking, being covered in thick layers of manure.

The owners of these horses regularly drive on to the common in pick-up trucks and vans but I understood the driving of vehicles on this land was limited to the necessary activities of council vehicles.

The vehicles gain access to the common via a gate barrier at the bottom of Harlow Common Road. The council did block this access with large earth mounds but the horse owners merely circumvented the barrier.

The side access has now been blocked but as the horse owners now use the gate and regularly leave the barrier open, this access will provide the local travelling community with easy access to the common any time they wish to park there.

I accept the grazing of horses throughout the year has some advantage for Harlow Council which will be saved the trouble and expense of mowing the land. However, the common is for the benefit of all and is currently not in a fit state for walking.

I personally will no longer want to risk walking my dog on the common.

PAH staff made us feel safe

SIR With all the recently reported problems with the NHS, I would like to voice my own experience.

Both my husband and I recently had occasion to use Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital. We were both treated with the utmost respect by cheerful staff who were so kind and helpful and went out of their way to deliver the most efficient treatment.

Everyone, including porters and catering staff, were so helpful and gave their part of the service with a smile and pleasant chat. The shortness of staff numbers did not deter them from delivering a wonderful service.

Thankfully our stay was short but we are grateful to staff who went out of their way to make us feel we were in safe hands.

Park Mead, Harlow

Parking fine is easy money

SIR I recently had to collect a package from the sorting office in Post Office Road.

The parking bays set aside for quick collections were unsurprisingly full, even though there was no-one in the office. Stupidly I decided to park on the double yellow line outside, although not obstructing any traffic or pedestrians.

Coming out of the office with my package I saw a warden sticking a parking notice to my windscreen, even though I had been gone only three or four minutes. She had obviously been lurking nearby or she would not have had time to issue the ticket.

My remonstrations were to no avail as she obviously had targets to meet.

Driving back home I passed Travellers' caravans on verges, vans parked on pavements and cars parked on dangerous corners and verges.

My fine is now paid, so more easy money for the North Essex Parking Partnership.

Keith Hatwell
Harlow (full address supplied)

Unreliable bus service

SIR How are mothers with babies in prams, college students and the elderly expected to depend on the R1 bus service that runs from Harlow town centre to Katherines?

The buses often break down, making it awkward for people who have GP appointments or appointments at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

Rumour has it that most of the passengers are elderly who use bus passes and so the route doesn't pay. But it should be taken into account all the years the elderly have worked and paid their taxes.

Mrs Felstead
Sheppards, Harlow

Spend more on prevention

SIR Local authorities have a remit to prevent both physical and mental health problems in the communities they serve, using their public health budgets.

Millions of pounds are spent every year to prevent people developing physical health problems like obesity, heart disease or cancer, but research by the charity Mind found that local authorities spend far too little on preventing mental health problems and are confused about what they should do to help prevent people becoming mentally unwell.

In the East of England only 1.1 per cent of this budget is spent on mental health. With around one in four of us experiencing a mental health problem this year, this figure is unacceptably low.

Demand for local NHS mental health services is rising and we have all seen reports that it is struggling to cope. Prevention is the key to making sure we reduce the impact on the health service in future.

We need the next government to introduce a national strategy to ensure local authorities know what to do and use their budgets to prevent mental health problems developing and reduce the number of people becoming unwell.

Cash plea saves Christmas lights

CHRISTMAS lights will sparkle in Harlow town centre this year after two companies stepped in with a cash offer to meet the cost.

A shadow was cast over the festive preparations after an online appeal was launched to raise money to help pay for the illuminations.

But this week Harlow Town Centre Partnership and Harlow Council announced that the appeal had secured the necessary £6,480 needed to light up Broad Walk and erect a 30ft-high Norway spruce Christmas tree.

Places for People, the property management, development and regeneration company behind the Gilston Park Estate housing plans, pledged £3,582 while Courtenay Investments Limited promised £3,000.

Harlow Council chipped in with a further £6,000 and the Harvey Centre donated £1,500, while a further £117 was raised in individual pledges.

Harlow councillor Tony Durcan, portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise, said: "This is the first time this route has been taken and it is great news that the appeal has attracted funding from the private sector along with donations from individuals."

"The council was always committed to ensuring that there will be Christmas lights in Broad Walk whatever happened, but we wanted to look at different ways the lights could be funded to reduce the financial contribution we make."

Mary Parsons, group director for placemaking and regeneration at Places for People, said: "Our proposal for development at Gilston Park Estate to the north of Harlow is a long-term vision for providing much-needed homes in the area, as well as helping bring more life to Harlow town centre."

"If this vision is to be realised it is crucial that we work alongside organisations such as Harlow Town Centre Partnership, which is why we are delighted to help light up Harlow this Christmas."

Richard Osband, a director of Courtenay Investments, said: "The Christmas lighting scheme in Broad Walk creates a welcoming and festive environment for the benefit of our tenants, residents and shoppers and we are pleased, as always, to support the project."

Preparations are now under way for a ceremony to switch on the lights in Broad Walk, Market Square and the Harvey Centre Approach to be switched on next Friday (November 14).

A COLLABORATION between police and secondary schools has resulted in the appointment of Harlow's first youth police ambassadors.

Students from Passmores Academy, Burnt Mill Academy, Stewards Academy, St Mark's West Essex Catholic School and Mark Hall Academy have volunteered to take on the role.

They will act as a link between the police and young people and will also work with Harlow Council and other organisations and groups in the town to ensure information is shared.

Students volunteer to serve as town's first police ambassadors

PC Rob Hance, who is leading the initiative, said: "We are looking for the ambassadors to run something in their schools at least once a month."

"Everything they do will be passed on to an independent advisory group and [Harlow youth councillor] Nishall Garala will be their voice there."

Chief superintendent Sean

O'Callaghan, who thanked the students for volunteering, said: "This is a new journey for Harlow police. We want to listen to young people and their concerns and for them to tell us what we are not doing right. "It is all about listening to what they want us to do and how we can engage with them. We are using this as a new opportunity to learn."

MPs fury at response to Traveller camps

than 2,000 residents in Harlow have signed Mr Halfon's petition calling on the authorities to take action.

But despite the level of public anger, the MPs say little has been done by the authorities to deal with the issues. The letter, copies of which have been sent to the Communities Secretary and the Justice Secretary, sets out a list of complaints against the Chief Constable, the Police and Crime Commissioner and local authorities.

It states: "It is our understanding that there are relevant laws that could be used to tackle this issue including laws on trespass, highways and antisocial behaviour. The residents of Harlow and Thurrock have suffered enough, and it is time that immediate action is taken and the law upheld."

In the letter Mr Halfon and Ms Doyle-Price outline their following criticisms:

Failure of the Chief Constable of Essex Police: "We believe there has been a significant failure of the Chief Constable for Essex to uphold the law and deal with this problem effectively. In Harlow, the police have seemed reluctant to act, seemingly because of human rights legislation about those individuals setting up illegal encampments. To date, there have been 73 illegal encampments in Harlow, but only 10 Section 61 Notices served."

Failure of the Police and Crime Commissioner:

"An investigation should be launched into whether he is upholding his public duty. As the public's representative it is his job to ensure that policing is upholding the law in Essex and to give challenge to the chief Constable where it is failing."

Failure of the authorities. "We both believe that the council should also pursue the perpetrators who set up illegal camps that then lead to huge clean-up costs at the expense of the taxpayer for compensation."

Yesterday (Wednesday), Mr Alston responded to the criticism, saying he discussed the issue regularly with the Chief Constable and believed police had acted "proportionately and reasonably" in dealing with unauthorised encampments in Harlow.

"As PCC, a key part of my role is to understand the issues and act as a bridge between the concerns of the community and Essex Police and partner agencies," he said. "I have had considerable direct involvement, including making visits to Harlow with Essex Police to learn more about what is happening on the ground."

He added: "There is a chronic under-provision of sites across Essex and there is not a single transit site in our county. One consequence is that police are not able to use Section 62 powers with regard to unauthorised encampments."

"This is a countywide problem. I am clear that however well it is policed, policing alone cannot offer a solution."

Greens pick former teacher to stand as election candidate

BIANCA CASTRO

bianca.castro@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FORMER secondary school teacher and current union official has been chosen by the Green Party to fight the Harlow seat at next year's General Election.

Murray Sackwild, who is general secretary of the Harlow and Epping Forest branch of National Union of Teachers and deputy general secretary of Essex NUT, said he was standing to give Harlow residents "a genuine choice".

He accused the Conservatives, Labour, Liberal Democrats and UKIP of "peddling the same free market brand with the idea that profit can and should be made out of anything and everything".

"As a former teacher I know we have some great schools in Harlow but I am concerned that the town's education system has become fragmented and lacks local, public accountability which it needs.

"I want to see the likes of schools, hospitals and railways publicly owned, publicly accountable and sustainably operated for the people and planet."

He added: "For the sake of the future we need to protect our green spaces and we need to encourage greater use of public transport with fair pricing and a first-rate, locally accountable, public transport system. I'm not standing to maximise the profit of a private few but for the common good."

Mr Sackwild, who has appealed for public support to raise the £500 deposit required to stand as a parliamentary candidate, said he believed he could make the fight to win Harlow a four-way battle.

"I am confident that people in Harlow will welcome a genuine choice and am appealing to the public to help fund my deposit because, unlike other parties, the Green Party is independent from large donors," he said.

Hospice nets £1k from estate agents' World Cup fundraiser

A FIRM of Harlow-based estate agents has blown the final whistle on a fundraising campaign which kicked off during the World Cup.

Reyland Johnson announced it would donate 10 per cent of its fees to St Clare Hospice for every new property that came onto its book while England remained in the tournament held during the summer.

Last Tuesday Brooke Stacey, St Clare's corporate fundraiser, was invited to the company's new offices in Bush Fair to receive a cheque for £1,000 from James Reyland and Ben Johnson.

"We rely on the local community for the core of our business so to work with a local cause like St Clare Hospice, which supports and cares for people living in the town that we serve, is the perfect way for us to give something back," they said.

"We are very proud to be associated with the hospice."

Thanking the pair for the donation, Ms Stacey said: "The support of our local business community is invaluable in helping us generate the money we need each year to ensure that local people facing a life-limiting illness and their families have timely access to our skilled and compassionate care.

"England may have crashed out of the World Cup disappointingly early for football fans, but we are absolutely delighted with this donation."

Store raiders threaten staff with crowbar

STAFF at a supermarket in Harlow were threatened with a crowbar by masked robbers during a raid.

Three men wearing balaclavas entered the Co-op store at Colt Hatch at 8.40pm last Wednesday. After threatening staff they stole cash from a safe, cigarettes and personal possessions including handbags.

Police are linking the robbery to two earlier thefts from pubs.

Three men with their faces covered entered the staff area of The Moorhen pub, in Burnt Mill Lane, at about 7.15pm and stole personal items before leaving the premises.

Less than an hour later a group of men with covered faces were seen in the staff area at The Crown Hotel in Old Nazeing Road, Broxbourne.

Police believed a silver or light coloured vehicle was used by the suspects.

A police spokesperson said: "Incidents of this kind are thankfully rare and because of the similarities in the crimes we are linking them at this early stage.

"Extensive enquiries are being carried out to find the people responsible and we ask anyone with information to contact us."

Witnesses should call Harlow CID on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Three months after taking over as chief executive of the Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust, Phil Morley tells Star news editor Gemma Gardner about his plans for the future of the hospital. In the first of a two-part report, he focuses on the difficult financial challenges that lie ahead.

PRINCESS Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust needs to make savings of £7m each year while facing an increased patient demand of 100,000 over the next decade.

It's a daunting challenge facing new chief executive Phil Morley, but he is quite clear how he will approach the task. He intends to maximise the money coming in by "doing things the right way".

"There are some unique features about this trust," he explains. "We see as many patients come through the A&E here as Addenbrookes Hospital in Cambridge, we see as many patients as Guys Hospital and St Thomas' Hospital in London and we see almost as many patients as UCL... and they are all really big trusts."

"So if you compare us with a trust of a similar size and population like Mid-Cheshire – and I was chief executive there five or six years ago – which have the same budget and the same population size, they have about 70,000 patients a year and we see 110,000. So we see more patients than Cambridge but they've got three times as many beds."

Earlier this year the PAH trust reported a deficit of £16.5m in the financial year 2013/14. The hospital now has a plan to reduce this over the next three years.

The cost of agency and temporary staff has been a big factor. Many of these were taken on to cope with the increased demand in A&E as well as emergency admissions compared with the same time last year.

At the start of the last financial year the hospital was spending just over £1m on temporary staff each month. That figure has gone up to around £2m per month.

Latest figures – to March 2014 – show there has been a year-on-year growth of 11 per cent in non-elective activity.

"The better your services are the more people want to come here so you become a victim of your own success," says Mr Morley. "We also suffer from the 'London effect' so we struggle to recruit into specialties. London lures people in; you get big pay at big teaching hospitals."

Cost control measures are

The hospital chief who must take a scapel to rising costs

now in place at PAH and there is a managed reduction in temporary and interim staff. As 17 per cent of the hospital's total pay bill goes on temporary workers, it will be terminating the contracts of costly senior interim corporate staff which will save £1.6m by the end of this financial year.

"We will also be recruiting more nurses to substantive posts to eliminate or massively reduce our reliance on agency nurses who are more expensive," says Mr Morley.

"We are looking at procurement and switching suppliers to get a better deal. Our cost-saving programme is being clinically-led with clinical working groups set up to manage the process." Currently the hospital prints two million pages of paper a year. If this is halved, the money saved would pay for six nurses. As a result the hospital is looking at adopting more electronic working practises.

It will also seek to reduce the £105,000 it spends on gas and electric each month.

"Turning temperature down by just one degree saves about £13,000 a month," he says. "But we will never make any cost-savings that could be detrimental to our excellent safety record and the care of patients. The way we are working currently is not working and by changing that we can not only become more efficient, we can also save money that can be re-invested into patient care."

Mr Morley says the hospital's patients, of which 57 per cent come from Essex and 43 per cent from Hertfordshire, bring with them varying levels of funding.

"Every patient that comes through the door attracts a certain tariff. If you're coming to an outpatient clinic you may get £60 while if you're having a hip operation you may get £3,000. So you don't start the year with a budget you can spend, you earn the budget as those patients come through the system."

"Each year that money goes down, the tariff usually goes down four per cent. But while the tariff goes down our costs keep going up."

"It's quite difficult to plan if you don't know how many people are going to come through the door. We only get a third of the tariff for non-elected emergency patients – that's how the system works nationally – so usually we make a loss on the patients who come in for emergency care."

But Mr Morley insists that by bringing income into the trust and ensuring it offers the best possible service, it is able to tackle challenging budgets.

"It's little things that make the big difference. Where do we spend the money we don't need to spend?"

Mr Morley, who comes from a clinical background and has worked in the NHS for more than 30 years, says he has enjoyed his first three months in the hotseat.

"It's a really friendly place, the town is a friendly place and the staff are welcoming and warm. I think it's our role is to try to find a future for the organisation."

Supermarket staff clear up allotment to help homeless

SUPERMARKET staff joined forces to help resurrect an overgrown allotment for homeless charity Streets2Homes.

The 30 volunteers from Tesco's three stores in Harlow spent the day strimming, digging and turning over the plot of land. As a result of their efforts, clients and volunteers at Streets2Homes will now be able to grow winter vegetables.

Tesco also donated a variety of seeds for this year and next as well as gardening tools to ensure the charity can continue using the allotment in Harlow.

Daniel Judd, Tesco's area community manager for Harlow, said: "The day was driven by seeking advice from a number of colleagues who knew a lot more than me about horticulture, along with advice from an employee from the local garden centre.

"It was far more labour intensive than we imagined but we dug up and turned over the entire plot. We also used a cultivator and a micro excavator hired from Hirebase in Harlow to better turn the soil."

bianca.castro@hertsessexnews.co.uk

The group also took down the charity's old shed that was missing windows and laid a new concrete base.

"We put up a new shed with the help of our maintenance team and also levelled an area of the allotment off so we could put up a greenhouse," said Mr Judd.

Staff at Streets2Homes were thrilled with the results. Mr Judd added: "The frost of the winter along with further work from the people at Streets2Homes will further improve the soil for next year.

"A big part of this project was about having something that the guys at Streets2Homes could get involved with, take ownership of and have some pride in, so we wanted to lay the foundations for that."

Streets2Homes, which is based in Wych Elm, provides a day centre as well as support services for the town's homeless.

Celebrations for disability charity

DISABILITY support charity Accuro has celebrated its 30th anniversary with families, professionals, colleagues, friends and supporters.

The charity, which provides support for people with a disability, welcomed more than 90 guests to the Harlow Leisurezone for the celebrations.

John Clements, a British clinical psychologist who specialises in development disabilities and in particular autism, was the guest speaker.

Mr Clements, who spoke about his work as well as his book Letters to the Home Front, gave a donation from the book sales on the night to the Hastingwood-based charity.

He said: "It was an honour and a privilege to be part of Accuro's celebrations."

Group to highlight a human atrocity

CAMPAIGNERS will be holding an awareness campaign on human trafficking in Harlow town centre on Saturday.

The group, from the Christian Revival Church in London, will be wearing brightly coloured T-shirts as they hope of attracting the attention of shoppers in Broad Walk to the campaign.

Sherie Dias, of the CRC London, said: "Human trafficking is a huge atrocity."

"People will have the chance to ask us questions about the campaign and we'll be providing information about human trafficking, current statistics and what to look out for."

Youngsters treated to Halloween party

CHILDREN from families supported by Harlow's Safer Places were treated to a Halloween party organised by Free Cakes for Kids Harlow.

A group of 25 children enjoyed the party during which they were able to design their own cupcakes and take part in apple bobbing and traditional party games with a spooky twist.

Food and drink was created and donated by Free Cakes' volunteers. The party also received donations from Harlow Foodbank and the Tesco store at Church Langley which gave a selection of Halloween accessories.

One of the Safer Places members of staff who attended the party said: "Children who come from homes where there is domestic abuse have often missed out on the fun times and so events like this are really important and help to start building happy memories."

"We can't thank Free Cakes for Kids enough."

Free Cakes for Kids Harlow is currently looking for volunteers and sponsors. For more information, call Emily on 07596486338.

Lottery winner

THE winner of the £1,000 first prize in the St Clare Hospice weekly lottery drawn on Friday, October 31 was the holder of ticket number 318727. The winner lives in Harlow.

The rollover prize was not won and will go forward to tomorrow's draw (Friday) when it will be £1,000.

Trainer helps team beat mud challenge

A PERSONAL trainer took a group of her clients on a gruelling obstacle mud run on Sunday.

Caroline Collins, 38, of Church Langley, was joined at the Nuclear Race by her husband Matthews and Chris Attlesley, Dean Cummings, Laura Butcher, Adam Whitton, Kara Whitton, Jay Ingram

and Paul Tank

Caroline, who runs Healthy Body, Healthy Mind, said: "I'm the first to admit I am very competitive but I admit I have learned a valuable lesson."

"It's not all about who got the best time, it's about having fun, helping each other and working as a team. Team HBHM taught me that so thank you."

She added: "To also be told by a client's mum 'Thank you for all you have done' and then be told by another client that I'm one seriously mad and inspirational lady made sure my day ended with a big smile."

Paramedic recruits ready for frontline service

THE latest batch of lifesavers will be taking to the roads after completing their student paramedic training.

The group of 17 finished their course with the East of England Ambulance Service, which covers Essex and five other counties, on Friday and will now be out treating patients.

During the 11-week course they were taught clinical skills at the trust's Melbourn training centre in Cambridgeshire as well as undertaking a three-week driving course at Barton Mills in Suffolk.

The new recruits will be based at seven locations, including Harlow.

Clinical educator Christina O'Sullivan, who tutored the group, said: "They all came with a good attitude which they have maintained throughout the course.

"I hope they will be confident and safe clinicians and that they all go to enjoy their careers."

EEAST chief executive Anthony Marsh added: "It's a fantastic achievement for the group and a big step in our progress to benefit patients and staff over a long-term period. I'd like to congratulate them all and wish them the very best in their new careers."

Nearly 600 student paramedics have been offered places at EEAST and new groups are starting regularly.

Church warden gambled away fraud proceeds

COURT REPORTER

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FORMER City banker, chairman of magistrates and church warden has been jailed for six years for a £5m fraud.

Patrick Coppeard, 49, of Denby Grange, Harlow, swindled friends, family and members of a church congregation, gambling away all the money they entrusted to him to invest.

Coppeard pleaded guilty at Chelmsford Crown Court to fraudulently abusing his position as a trustee of St John's Church in Loughton between January 1, 2008 and May 11, 2013.

Prosecutor Peter Gair said Coppeard, who was a managing director of Merrill Lynch investment bank until he took medical retirement in 2000, was given more than £5m by 61 friends, relatives and associates as well as the church itself.

His victims ranged from a school-age friend of his son to pensioners.

When the fraud came to light, his victims variously described themselves as feeling violated, traumatised and depressed. Some had lost their life savings while others faced bankruptcy, the loss of their home or were unable to pay for care for elderly loved ones.

The court heard Coppeard ran a Ponzi-type fraud in which investors were supposed to be paid back from later recruits drawn in.

Coppeard handed himself in to police in May last year.

Mr Gair said: "He jumped before he was pushed. He was clearly so heavily in debt and had no means at all to make the bogus returns that he even started bouncing cheques."

Until then he was still accepting "investment" cash, in one case a sum of £160,000.

Mr Gair said Coppeard, who has kidney disease, retired from Merrill Lynch in 2000 with a £1m bonus and monthly payments of £5,600.

JAILED: Patrick Coppeard

He admitted having a gambling problem and used online spread betting on shares, on casinos and sporting events.

When questioned by police about the money he had swindled he told them he had "zip-pety doo-dah" left.

Mr Gair said that the Crown would be seeking to confiscate Coppeard's assets but his victims were only likely to receive less than 10p in the £ for what they had lost.

"He knew these people and would have known the effect on them, the violation, loss of trust, trauma of losing their life savings," added Mr Gair.

Sean Hammond, representing Coppeard, said in mitigation the defendant had not lived a lavish lifestyle and was genuinely remorseful.

Mr Hammond said the fraud began after his retirement, escalating until it spiralled totally out of control.

Mr Hammond said Coppeard's kidney disease prognosis was "not good" and his condition would severely deteriorate.

Jailing Coppeard for six years, judge Anthony Goldstaub said: "Sixty one individuals lost all or some of their life savings and their bitterness is well understood.

"I wish by sentencing you I can make them feel better or give them some sense of closure but it will not be possible because all that will be left from a case like this is loss on all sides."

Sound of 'explosion' caused by sonic boom

A LATVIAN cargo plane was escorted to Stansted Airport after it was intercepted by RAF jets over Kent, causing a sonic boom over Harlow.

The activity, caused after the plane lost contact with air traffic control at around 4.40pm last Wednesday, led to an explosive-like blast over Kent and parts of Essex.

It has since emerged the sound was a sonic boom caused by the RAF jets intercepting the aircraft.

A statement posted to the RAF Coningsby Facebook page read: "RAF Typhoon aircraft were launched from RAF Coningsby to intercept a civilian aircraft that was causing concern to civil air traffic control. The aircraft was escorted safely to Stansted.

"During the operation the aircraft were cleared to travel at supersonic speed. We apologise for any inconvenience or concern."

Fireworks show sets the s

AN enthusiastic crowd of more than 15,000 people were treated to a spectacular display of pyrotechnics at Harlow's firework and bonfire night celebrations on Sunday.

The night sky exploded in a blaze of colour during what is now one of the biggest free admission shows in the east of England.

The event, organised by Harlow Council with support from Great Parndon Community Association, has been running in the town for more than 40 years.

People arriving early at the Town Park had the chance to enjoy a funfair and a music roadshow hosted by Heart FM breakfast show presenters Martin and Su.

Harlow Council chairman Ian Beckett fired up the giant bonfire with the help of the the Ugly Sisters from this year's Playhouse pantomime – pictured right – and half-an-hour later the 20-minute fireworks display got under way.

Afterwards, Cllr Beckett said: "I am very pleased to say the council has provided another great event enjoyed by thousands of people.

"There was a huge amount of cheers

GEMMA GARDNER

and applause at the end of the fireworks display so we know we put on a great show.

"There are not many free admission events like this nowadays and this display is one of the biggest, if not the biggest, in the area. Putting on a public display means that many local families can celebrate this occasion together in safety rather than organise their own events."

He added: "I would like to say a huge thank you to council staff, the stewards, David Shimmen from the Great Parndon Community Association and the volunteers who worked hard all day and into the evening to make sure that this event was such a success."

More than £110 was raised through donations and will be split between Cllr Beckett's three chosen charities - No Child Without, The Chocolate Run and Gibberd Garden.

Thanks were also given to staff, volunteers and Friends of Pets' Corner, who were on hand to keep the animals safe during the event.

Care firm's losses putting jobs at risk

THE jobs of up to 100 care workers are at risk as a loss-making Essex County Council-owned firm struggles to get into profit.

Essex Cares, which was set up as a Local Authority Trading Company in 2009 and runs the Hub@Harlow – a centre in Pyenest Road offering support and respite care for families – made a pre-tax loss of more than £800,000 last year.

This week Essex Cares chairman Peter Martin released a statement in which he said: "We are not a profitable organisation... this cannot continue if the company is to survive."

Unions have described plans to address the financial position as a major concern to staff.

Essex County Council is the sole shareholder of Essex Cares, which is allowed to make a profit from the services it provides to its clients.

When it was established it was the first such firm to be set up in the UK, and provides support for elderly and disabled people at home and in activity centres.

Although it made a pre-tax profit in each of the financial years up to 2012-13, the firm made a loss 2013-14 financial year. As a result, managers are proposing reducing the management and administration workforce by the equivalent of 24 fulltime posts.

But in a document seen by the BBC, the company said: "The number of redundancies may be higher as there may be some skills gaps that cannot be addressed."

GEMMA GARDNER

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

It goes on to say that "the maximum possible number of redundancies is therefore estimated at 100 head count".

The document adds the company is planning to bring in changes in two phases, with potential cuts in staff being made at the second stage.

Michelle Bradley, union Unison area organiser, said: "We are extremely concerned. We have a large number of members working for Essex Cares. It is clearly in the early days and the company has started consultation."

A spokesman for Essex Cares said that last year it helped more than 53,000 people to stay in their homes and communities.

"Our customers' needs can be complex and Essex has a growing elderly population which will bring fresh challenges in the future," he added. "This transformation programme will create a flexible organisation that builds on the excellent service we already deliver to make it even better."

"It will respond swiftly, providing professional support out of hours and put more resources behind a larger number of front line staff. We'll resize and reshape, put decision making down to the local level where it belongs and employ robust IT to improve efficiency."

"This is a bold plan that realises a vision and model for growth that will see Essex Cares deliver a gold standard service and be a great place to work."

Fright night's a scream for witches of Harlow

TRICK or treaters got the surprise of their lives when they knocked on the door of one house in Harlow on Friday.

For waiting to greet them in full witch costumes and make-up were Debbie Page, 47, Denise Mitchell, 42, and Paula Payne, 45, who spent most of Halloween decorating the Orchard Croft house.

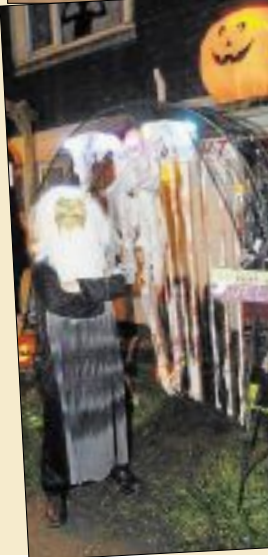

It is the fourth year the three friends have Halloween extravaganza.

"Every year it gets scarier and scarier," said Debbie. "We are right on the main road and we have lots of people stopping and coming over to see what's going on."

"We had lots of people saying how amazing it was."

Andy Bownass, of Lower Meadow, also turned his home into a spooky scene for Halloween.

Man walking on A12 was hit by several vehicles

An inquest into the death of a Harlow man who struck by several vehicles while walking on the A12 in the early hours of the morning was opened yesterday (Wednesday).

Chelmsford Coroners Court was told Kyle Brooks, 28, of Broadfield, died on the stretch of road between Boreham and Hatfield Peverel on Thursday.

Coroner's officer Narder Beeson said Mr Brooks had been walking in the northbound carriageway when he was struck.

The provisional cause of death was given as multiple injuries.

The inquest was adjourned until January.

New procedure for eye emergencies

EMERGENCY patients seeking treatment in the eye unit at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital will first be seen in A&E from Monday.

Anyone requiring urgent treatment from a doctor will then be referred back to the eye unit's emergency clinic.

Those considered not to be an emergency case will be directed to an alternative source of help such as their GP or local pharmacist.

All non-emergency patients who have an appointment will be seen in the usual way in the eye unit.

In Memoriam

RONALD FRY (25-6-37 - 9-11-09)

A dear Husband and wonderful Dad and Grandad. Another year has passed away, still love you and miss you everyday. It broke our hearts to lose you the day. God called you home, part of us went with you, you never went alone. Remembering you is easy, we do it everyday, missing you is the hardest part, as it never goes away. If we could have a lifetime wish, a dream that could come true, we'd pray to God with all our hearts, for yesterday and you. A thousand words can't bring you back, we know because we've tried, and neither can a thousand tears, we know because we've cried. You left behind our broken hearts but happy memories too, we never wanted memories, we only wanted you. Rest in peace sweetheart.

Your ever loving wife Jean and family

SCHOOL NEWS

BURNT MILL ACADEMY Students at the First Avenue secondary were given the opportunity to practice their language skills on a trip to Normandy.

The group of Year 8 students spent five days in the region. During their stay they were set the challenge of going to a market with a budget and producing a lunch.

They also visited a bakery to see how croissants are made and had the opportunity to try out archery and rock climbing.

One of the highlights was a trip to Paris where they stayed in a hotel at the Disneyland Paris resort.

Head of modern foreign languages Louise Birke said: "The trip gave the students a real opportunity to try out their French language skills and to get an insight and passion for the country.

"If you love a country it gives you the incentive to learn the language and now all these students are asking about doing GCSE French."

Pupils get to work on car park challenge

FRESHWATERS PRIMARY

ACADEMY Year 6 pupils were invited to put their ideas forward on how to improve the school car park.

As part of Primary Futures Week, children at the School Lane primary were visited by a variety of professionals including a banker, police officer, animator and a cook to learn more about the world of work.

James Johnson, from Archer Building Consultancy in Takeley, set them a challenge to help him restructure the layout of the car park.

"I spoke to the pupils about the work of a building surveyor, from looking at a site and measuring up to turning those measurements into computer models and carrying out the actual works.

"I gave them the mission of measuring up and coming up with plans to make better use of the space. The work we have done with the children is actually going to happen, so they will see the improvements made to the car park and understand the process."

Headteacher Marios Solomonides said: "This is about our children seeing there are lots of opportunities in the world of work. It's not just about the roles they see in their world.

"We want the children to see that what they are learning now will help them in their future careers.

They need to take responsibility for what they are learning and know there is a real purpose to their education.

"A big part of our school improvement plan is to teach our children the value of work and money. We like to make these real-life links to our lessons."

Council chairman at harvest celebrations

PEAR TREE MEAD ACADEMY Harlow Council chairman Ian Beckett joined pupils as they celebrated harvest festival.

The event was split into two sessions and parents were invited to join the celebrations of harvests around the world.

The pupils performed songs, poetry and dances and also made props for the grand event at the end of the day.

Harvest gifts were donated to Harlow Foodbank.

Headteacher Christine Peden said: "Both festivals were bursting at the seams. We learned all about how harvest is celebrated in other countries and the children really enjoyed performing on stage.

"It's a really lovely school event." She added: "We also support the foodbank by having one of their textile bins in our school grounds and it also supports our breakfast club on a weekly basis."

School field becomes battleground

STEWARDS ACADEMY

Students and staff at the Parnall Road school marked the 948th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings by staging a re-enactment on the school field.

Two Year 7 groups – 7DJ and 7MR – took part while history teacher Marie Erwood ensured pupils were accurate in their depictions of the historic moment.

The 'soldiers' prepared for the occasion by making their own battle regalia, marching out to the substitute Senlac Hill and going through the tactics deployed by King Harold II and William of Normandy.

Ms Erwood said: "The pupils had a fantastic time and the educational objective of understanding the battle was fully achieved."

Student Ben Lavery added: "It was brilliant fun and I enjoyed every minute of it. I learned so much about the Battle of Hastings as well."

Poppy Appeal 2014

Wear your poppy with pride as a symbol of remembrance and hope

DURING the First World War much of the fighting took place in western Europe. Previously beautiful countryside was blasted, bombed and fought over again and again.

The landscape swiftly turned to fields of mud, bleak and barren scenes where little or nothing could grow.

However, bright red Flanders poppies were delicate but resilient flowers and grew in their thousands, flourishing even in the middle of chaos and destruction.

In the spring of 1915, shortly after losing a friend at Ypres, a Canadian doctor, Lt Col John McCrae, was inspired by the sight of poppies to write his now-famous poem In Flanders Fields.

August 4, 2014 marked the 100th anniversary of the day Britain entered one of the costliest conflicts in history, with fighting continuing until November 11, 1918 – Armistice Day.

The Royal British Legion was founded by veterans of the First World War who adopted the poppy as their symbol of remembrance and hope.

Today, the Legion is at the forefront of centenary commemorations. As we come together in remembrance of events a century ago, we are reminded of the important welfare work the Legion continues to provide and will need to provide in the future.

The problems facing First World War veterans when they returned to the UK continue to affect serving personnel and veterans today, whether living with bereavement or disability, finding employment or coping with financial stress.

As the UK's Custodian of Remembrance, the Legion is leading the nation in honouring the sacrifices of those who served their country in times of war. As the UK's largest Armed Forces charity, it provides direct care and support to Armed Forces and veteran families in need.

The Royal British Legion provides support to all members of the British Armed Forces past and present, as well as their families, with offices throughout England, Wales, Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland and in partnership with Poppyscotland.

There is also an extensive network of branches throughout the UK and overseas.

'We liked our award so much we decided to sponsor the contest'

BIANCA CASTRO

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FORWARD-thinking motoring firm which scooped a top prize at this year's Essex Digital Awards has become the headline sponsor for the 2015 competition.

Lookers Volvo Colchester – a branch of one of the UK's leading car groups – will put its name to the online awards which are also backed by the Star.

The move forms part of the car retailer's strategy to overtake the competition and become a driving force on the internet.

At the inaugural EDAs in April the Colchester firm picked up a gold award in the Online Marketing Campaign category for its innovative digital magazine Kronika.

The company's busy social media channels, website and Kronika form just part of its seismic shift to increase online interaction with customers.

In September Lookers Volvo Colchester joined forces with Volvo UK to become the first organisation in history to sell a new car model exclusively online.

With a strong focus on internet-based business over the past few months and a strategy to become even more present on the web, Miles Alvis, of Lookers Volvo Colchester, described teaming up with the EDAs as an "easy decision".

He added: "It was absolutely fantastic to win our award and forging this partnership was one of the easiest decisions I'll ever make in this job."

"Volvo is a brand that leads the way when it comes to new technology and progression. Similarly, the Essex Digital Awards have led the way in developing a great platform for the digital talent and creativity within Essex to showcase on."

Mr Alvis revealed that winning the EDA last year has "revolutionised" the perception of his dealership as an online operator.

The EDAs is the first and only scheme to recognise the online achievements of businesses, school and charities from across the county. There are 10 categories from website to use of social media. Entry is free and takes a couple of minutes to complete on the website at www.essexdigitalawards.co.uk

Debbie Hunt, Lookers' divisional corporate sales manager who looks after business centres across Essex, Herts and London, has described the alliance with the EDAs as "very exciting".

"We can't wait to see who enters this year and who the award winners are for 2015," she said.

The 2015 winners evening will be held at Weston Homes Community Stadium – home of Colchester United Football Club – on April 23.

Iain Johnson, of EDAs organisers Premio64, said: "We are absolutely thrilled to have a first-class operator like Lookers Volvo Colchester on-board with the Essex Digital Awards."

"It's so pleasing to witness the natural evolution of Lookers from an award winner last year to an official partner this year."

"We have been discussing a number of very exciting ways of working together in the months ahead and with Lookers delivering an integrated online marketing strategy to promote some of the most technologically advanced and business compatible cars in the world, I think this is a match made in heaven."

Entry for the EDAs is open now.

A GROUP of five volunteers will be holding Harlow's first parkrun to encourage more people in the town to become involved in sports and leisure activities.

The first of the free weekly timed 5k runs will be starting in Harlow Town Park at 9am on Saturday.

There are currently more than 200 parkruns throughout the UK and more than 1.2 million people registered to take part in events across the world.

Entirely run by volunteers, the main organising team behind the Harlow parkrun consists of Vicky Calver, Janice Page, Robin Lozeau, Catherine Penketh and Claire Stevens.

Event director Vicky said: "We are all passionate about running but with varying experience."

"Harlow Council was keen to get the parkrun started to promote sports and leisure activities within the town."

"It's open to everyone and parkruns are safe and easy to take part in. They are suitable for people of every ability from those taking their first steps in running to Olympians, and from juniors to those with more running experience."

Vicky took up running two years ago when she was persuaded by a friend to compete in a half marathon for charity.

She decided to join the team organising the Harlow parkrun after finding that running boosted her self confidence.

"I always thought I hated running but I haven't stopped since the half-marathon and have since run everything from a 5k to attempting

Free, fun and fitness - the 3Fs at the heart of the parkrun craze

my first ultra-marathon of 30 miles last month.

"I have found the running community to be super friendly and supportive because we were all beginners once and know how daunting running your first mile can be.

"I have gained so much from running; my self-confidence has grown, I have lost weight and toned up along with the help of a personal trainer. So many of my friends have told me I am an inspiration to them.

"I wanted to help others who think they can't do it because they are too old or overweight. Having dodgy knees and being 35 years old does not stop you achieving whatever you want to achieve and you are never too old to start getting active."

Janice and Robin are both experienced runners, Claire started running three years ago while Catherine is the organising group's most experienced parkrunner, having completed more than 50 events.

"We are all looking to give something back to the community and get people becoming more active, including children," said Vicky.

Harlow parkrun is open to everyone. Children under 11 must be accompanied by an adult at all times and runners can take their dogs although they are limited to one per person and must be kept on a short lead.

People who want to be involved without taking part in the run can volunteer to help out in one of a number of roles, including marshals and timekeepers.

Vicky said: "Local parkruns are run entirely by volunteers, including the core team."

"Without those volunteers, parkrun could not go ahead. We encourage everyone from the community to come along and volunteer and get involved."

To register for the Harlow parkrun, visit www.parkrun.org.uk. Participants will get a bar-code number they need to print off and take to any parkrun event they compete in.

Saturday's run will start from outside The Greyhound pub in School Lane.

To volunteer or find out more about how to get involved, email harlow-helpers@parkrun.com.

The giant 'eye' of Jupiter

FOR hundreds of years astronomers have been looking into space to study far-off planets and stars.

But now a picture taken by the Hubble space telescope shows what at first appears to be one of the planets nearest to Earth looking back at us.

The image of Jupiter – the biggest planet in the Solar System – was captured by the telescope as it was tracking changes in the planet's giant red storm, which is around 40,000 kilometres wide.

While Hubble, pictured above, was monitoring the storm, the shadow of Ganymede – one of Jupiter's moons – passed across the storm, giving the giant planet the appearance of having a giant eye.

A spokesman for NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) told reporters: "For a moment Jupiter stared back at Hubble like a one-eyed giant Cyclops."

Fourth Avenue, Harlow

SINGER—songwriter Nick Harper will be performing at The Square tomorrow (Friday) for the first time... and he is telling the audience to expect "nothing and everything".

Nick, son of legendary UK singer-songwriter Roy Harper, has been playing the guitar since he was 10 and is still as excited by making music as he was back then.

"I have been doing this for 20 years now," he said. "Luckily I still love playing the guitar in the garden, making up stuff and finding new ways of expressing similar morals and ethics."

"It is still exciting for me. To pick up the guitar and having nothing – a blank page, no sound – and then maybe half-an-hour later, three months later or even a year later that moment turns into something that says something. That's pretty amazing."

Nick describes the songs on his ninth studio album, titled NIX, as an "old fashioned snapshot of a couple of weeks with one microphone, one idiot and a guitar".

And he is promising tomorrow's gig will be something those in the audience will know as a moment that won't be repeated.

"I will be playing some stuff from my new album as well as a few covers and there will be a few stories here and there."

"It is not an easy-going, wallpaper type of affair, it is an engaging event. That is what makes live music so great."

He added: "People should expect nothing and everything. It will be just me and my guitar and I can go to either spectrum with that. Hopefully it is an engaging event and that night at The Square will be the only night like that, the only night I play those particular songs in that particular way."

"Anyone who is there will hopefully know that it will never be the same. It won't be repeated in that particular way; it's a unique moment."

>> Nick Harper will be performing at The Square tomorrow (Friday). Doors open at 8pm and tickets are £10.

Helen of Troy with a contemporary edge

A PRODUCTION company that specialises in contemporary productions of classical and ancient stories is coming to Harlow with its latest offering.

Actors of Dionysis theatre company will be bringing the story of the face that launched a thousand ships to the stage in a way audiences will never have seen before.

The world premiere of Helen – a two character performance – is inspired by Helen of Troy, and follows an aging but glamorous icon who is held captive in a darkened room with only a shadowy, silent male figure for company.

It follows Helen, 20 years after the fall of Troy, and focuses on the relationship of both Helen and her jailer, a mute, locked in a room together. The piece is as much about movement and the body as it is about the psyche and the human mind.

Co-writer Tamsin Shasa, who is also taking on the female lead, said: "It is a visually striking piece, very unusual, quite psychological and funny in places."

"Helen is quite ridiculous and she is a complex woman. I think it can be quite moving."

The performance will also feature physical and circus aspects which Tamsin said are used symbolically at different points when the performance needs it.

BIANCA CASTRO

bianca.castro@hertsessexnews.co.uk

"We have a real dimension of circus and physical parts which are used symbolically," she said. "It is not used just for the sake of it but adds to the story and adds another aspect to it."

This year Actors of Dionysis celebrates its 21st anniversary "It is very exciting and it's really great to be back in Harlow," Tamsin said. "Harlow Playhouse is one of our company commissioners. Scott Ramsey [theatre manager] and the Playhouse have helped us a lot with rehearsals."

"Harlow has actually been an integral part of the tour."

Actors of Dionysis will also be holding workshops at several Harlow school before embarking on a UK tour with Helen.

"This is new writing, it has not been reviewed very much and people do not know what to expect," said Tamsin, "but it is a really visual, striking piece and we're really excited to bring it to Harlow."

>> Helen will be at the Harlow Playhouse today (Thursday) at 1.30pm and tomorrow at 7.30pm. Tickets are £14 and can be bought at the Playhouse box office or online at www.playhouseharlow.com.

Ballet students impress with gala performances review

Harlow Ballet Association Studio, Harlow Playhouse

her troops armed with umbrellas which transformed into giant poppy headstones as each soldier fell.

The gala gives HBA a fine opportunity to display students' progress and the packed Studio theatre was treated to a wide-ranging programme. From And So To Bed (choreographed by Claire Hinkles), which saw the company's tiniest members performing for the first time, to a selection of dances from Swan Lake (with the original choreography of Lev Ivanovitch Ivanov and Marius Petipa), the audience were thoroughly engaged and entertained.

The latter's dances featured graceful and assured performances by Hannah Mehew as Odette, Queen of the Swans – her Grand pas de deux with Stefan Donovan was a delight – while the fast-paced Dance of the Cynets was executed with aplomb by Nadia Jones, Millie Smith, Charlotte Taylor and Darcy Wylie.

The programme also included dances from The Nutcracker, which HBA is staging in full next April. Again Hannah Mehew was outstanding as the Sugar Plum Fairy, both in her solo performance and in the Grand pas de deux with Stefan Donovan.

The evening performance also saw Jack Petchey Foundation awards presented to Poppy Evans and Maria Kruger and there were anniversary gifts for artistic director Michael Branwell and his technical director wife Henrietta, who celebrated their ruby wedding the day before.

So, all in all, this was HBA's opportunity to give itself a big pat on the back – and a much-deserved one at that!

Bridget McAlpine

THIS year marks the centenary of the outbreak of the First World War and a creative young choreographer chose this anniversary to devise an imaginative tribute to the devastating conflict.

Nadia Jones, 14, won Harlow Ballet Association's 28th annual choreographic competition with A Bird's Eye View of the Trenches, a poignant and touching portrayal of the horror and futility of war, danced to the distinctive music of English composer John Casken.

The role of the bird was taken by sparky little Will Smith who, at just nine years of age, is fast emerging as a leading performer within the company. Hovering over the trenches, the bird is witness to terrible brutality while transforming the minds of the battle-weary and doomed soldiers (Grace Lilly, Ellen Ponponne, Jodie Sangster, Millie Smith, Charlotte Taylor and Darcy Wylie).

In a stroke of ingenuity, Nadia had

Springing into action to beat the winter chills

WE may have had storms and rain, but while the ground is still workable gardeners should make the most of the time they have left to do the jobs which will give them a head start next year.

Whether it's revamping your lawn, dividing perennials, trimming hedges, clearing weeds or preparing the greenhouse for winter, you should leave no stone unturned if you want to get things in order for spring.

Don't delay in completing these tasks:

:: Plant new trees, shrubs and roses.

These should benefit from the warm soil which encourages root growth to develop quickly. You will need to give them a good soak when planting initially, but hopefully rain will play a part too.

Just keep an eye on newly-planted specimens and don't allow them to dry out if we don't have wet weather. The plants should establish over the winter, giving you a head start for spring.

:: Revamp your lawn. With all the autumn rain we've had the ground will be soft enough to either turf or reseed a new lawn, or repair an old one.

If you are laying new turf good preparation is the key and that means removing weeds and stones, digging over the soil, adding compost or well-rotted farmyard manure, incorporating sharp grit on heavy soil and levelling the area off to a fine tilth on which to sow seed or lay turf.

It needs to be kept well watered, although the rain should help at this time of year. Seed needs to be protected from birds with netting, elevated by placing shortened twigs or canes around the area and securing the netting to them.

:: Trim hedges and tidy evergreens.

Evergreens should not put on much new growth during winter so should save you the job of pruning them in spring, when you may risk disturbing nesting birds. Deciduous shrubs can be pruned into winter.

:: Divide perennials. Now is the perfect time to split those plants which have become congested while they are dormant but before the ground becomes too hard to dig them out.

Perennials which benefit from dividing every few years include hostas (but you'll need a knife to cut through the thick roots), cranesbill geranium, montbretia, rudbeckia, helenium and aster.

You can also move plants which aren't happy in their allotted space to a spot where they may be happier.

:: Weed out the worst culprits. If you do a final weed before the perennial weeds disappear for the winter, you should hopefully make your task lighter when they come back in spring.

Look out for ground elder, couch grass and bindweed which are among the most pernicious weeds and try to dig up all the white roots which, if left in the ground, will just sprout up again next year.

:: Increase your stock. Take hardwood cuttings in late autumn to propagate shrubs including roses, willows, philadelphus, weigelas and dogwoods.

Cut woody shoots from the base of the current year's growth, trim below a leaf joint and remove the tip to leave the cuttings 20-30cm long. Dip the base into hormone rooting powder, make a slit trench in a well cultivated but vacant area of the garden, push the cuttings in vertically, 30cm apart and firm the soil back around them, closing the trench. Water them in. This time next year they may have rooted enough to be moved.

:: Spruce up the greenhouse. If the weather is still sunny there is no better time to wash the windows, remove the shading, clean the staging and do any structural repairs needed. Then you can insulate the greenhouse with bubble wrap in preparation for winter.

Jobs to do in the garden this week

:: Clear out and place under cover decorative containers that aren't frost hardy.

:: Prune climbing and rambling roses and cut back hybrid tea roses to reduce damage from windrock.

:: Prune wisterias to ensure and increase flowering next year.

:: Consider installing a pond heater to keep a small area of water ice-free if you keep fish.

:: Check your bonfire pile for hedgehogs and toads hibernating in there. If there are, leave them in peace.

:: If pots are too large to bring inside, insulate them from the cold using bubble wrap or horticultural fleece.

:: Remove yellowing leaves from Brussels sprouts and other winter brassicas such as cabbages and broccoli. They are of no use to the plants and encourage diseases such as botrytis.

:: Finish planting spring cabbages.

:: Empty compost bins of well-rotted compost to mulch over borders.

Chef Dipna gets carried away

FOR many of us, Indian food conjures up images of a naughty but nice takeaway with all the trimmings, or a quick and calorific curry ready meal.

But chef Dipna Anand is determined to prove there are healthy ways to enjoy all your favourites – from tandoori dishes to Bombay potatoes – without sacrificing flavour.

"A lot of people think Indian food is oily and greasy and it can't be made without a lot of butter and ghee, but that's not the case at all," says the 30-year-old, whose family has run the award-winning Brilliant Restaurant in Southall since the 1970s.

"You can still make a fantastic chicken tikka masala without using the butter and oils and fats. As long as you balance the spices, that's what gives the dish its flavour and taste."

Anand was inspired to research low-fat Indian cuisine as a schoolgirl after her father, Gulu, had a wake-up call after suffering a heart attack.

"He was eating a lot of oily, greasy food so I wanted to do something aimed at people who were controlling their weight but still loved Indian food," she explains.

After landing top marks for an A-level project on the subject, the low-fat options were added to the

TANDOORI LAMB CHOPS (makes 12 pieces)

10 lean lamb chops
3 green finger chillies, made into a paste
1tbsp ginger/garlic paste
75g raw papaya (or unripe pineapple) made into a paste
1+1/2tbsp white vinegar
1tsp salt or to taste
3tbsp chopped fresh coriander for garnish

Spices
1tsp cumin powder
3/4tsp turmeric powder
3/4tsp red chilli powder
1/2tsp white pepper powder
1/4tsp nutmeg powder
1/4tsp green cardamom powder (ground cardamom seeds)

Lightly slit the lamb chops on either side - three gashes on each side, not too deep.

Mix all the other ingredients together into a bowl thoroughly using a whisk.

Once the ingredients are completely combined together, add the lamb chops to the marinade and coat, using your hands to mix.

When the lamb chops are coated, leave in the refrigerator to marinate for at least 30 minutes or preferably overnight or the meat to soak up the flavour better.

To cook the lamb chops, lightly grease an oven tray, lay the lamb chops flat on the tray and cook for about 25 minutes at 180C. Turn the chops over half way through cooking to cook evenly on the other side.

Serve and get stuck in.

Brilliant menu and, says Anand, "they took off".

She's now written her first cookbook, Beyond Brilliant, which features healthy dishes among its more than 40 recipes.

"Some of the recipes in the book date back 65 years," she says. "They were passed from my grandfather to my dad and now on to me."

The Brilliant restaurant has welcomed its fair share of famous faces over the years including the Prince of Wales and Duchess of Cornwall. TV chef Gordon Ramsay also featured it in his 2010 series Ramsay's Best Restaurant and spent a day learning how to cook on the clay oven.

"It's not the easiest station to work on in the kitchen and he left here with blisters on his arms, but he still did a fantastic job and he grafted," reveals Anand. "He's very passionate and very funny as well. He was swearing at times, but when it came to work he was getting the orders out."

When she isn't working in the restaurant or running cookery courses, Anand plays cricket and indulges her other passion: shopping.

"I'm a compulsive shopaholic," she confesses. "I love shoes, handbags, shirts, earrings, bangles, jewellery, everything!"

Anand's family is at the heart of what she does and there are photographs of them throughout her book.

"For the last 10 years my dad's been saying, 'Dipna you should write a book'," she says. "There were tears in his eyes at the book launch - his dream was accomplished."

"Just to see that smile on his face, there can be nothing more rewarding than that."

:: Beyond Brilliant by Dipna Anand is published by RMC Books, priced £19.95

Interstellar (12A, 150 mins)

Searching the stars on a mission to save mankind

WRITER-director Christopher Nolan shoots for the stars in this futuristic thriller about mankind's search for a new home.

Epic in scope and wildly ambitious, Interstellar doesn't quite achieve its bold vision of a love story between a father and daughter set against the vast backdrop of mankind's final roll of the dice to avoid extinction.

However, even when this grand futuristic adventure malfunctions, it's a deeply engrossing meditation on the ties that bind and the endurance of those emotional bonds across space and time.

Earth is dying. Great dust clouds sweep across agricultural plains, ruining crops and making it impossible to breathe comfortably without face masks.

"We used to look up and wonder about our place in the stars," laments Cooper (Matthew McConaughey), a former test pilot who toils the parched soil with his 15-year-old son Tom (Timothée Chalamet) and 10-year-old daughter Murphy (Mackenzie Foy). "Now we just look down and worry about our place in the dirt."

Cooper answers a call from Professor Brand (Michael Caine) to lead a mission to locate a new planet capable of sustaining human life.

Leaving his brood in the care of his father-in-law (John Lithgow), Cooper embarks on the most important mission in human history, knowing that failure would mean certain death for the people he loves.

Interstellar retains a tight focus on the characters without sacrificing the adrenaline-pumping thrills that fans expect from director Nolan.

Oscar winners McConaughey and Anne Hathaway – pictured – who plays scientist's daughter Ameila, add emotional heft to their embattled astronauts.

Nolan and cinematographer Hoyte van Hoytema have captured some of the most breathtaking vistas including our first glimpses of a black hole on large-format IMAX film.

These sequences pack a mighty visual punch and powerfully convey how tiny and seemingly insignificant we are on our third rock from the sun.

Composer Hans Zimmer, who collaborated with the London-born director on The Dark Knight trilogy, provides another bombastic orchestral score to complement the majestic imagery.

A couple of dense, wordy philosophical discussions about gravity and love orbit the moon of unintentional hilarity but, thankfully, Nolan avoids the crash and burn in the nick of time.

ALEXANDER AND THE TERRIBLE, HORRIBLE, NO GOOD, VERY BAD DAY (PG, 91mins)

BASED on Judith Viorst's 1972 children's picture book, Alexander And The Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day is an effervescent comedy about the trials and tribulations that unite a modern family.

Sweet and inoffensive to its candy-coloured core, Miguel Arteta's film bursts with good intentions and wholesome ideals, teaching the valuable lesson about weathering an emotional storm in the company of people you love.

Rob Lieber's simplistic and episodic script ricochets between the different family members as their carefully ordered worlds implode.

Eleven-year-old Alexander Cooper (Ed Oxenbould) feels like the universe is conspiring against him. He's the laughing stock of the entire school, his efforts to impress classmate Becky (Sidney Fullmer) have ended in ignominy and Philip Parker (Lincoln Melcher), the most popular boy in the year, has just announced he is having his birthday party on the same day as Alexander.

Misunderstood by his picture postcard family – father Ben (Steve Carell), mother Kelly (Jennifer Garner), older brother Anthony (Dylan Minnette), sister Emily (Kerris Dorsey) and baby brother Trevor (Elise and Zoey Vargas) – Alexander makes a birthday wish for the rest of the Cooper clan to walk in his shoes for 24 hours. As if by magic the entire Cooper family endures a day that threatens to leave them heartbroken and penniless. As the calamities stack up, Alexander wonders if he should come clean to his loved ones about his involvement in their spectacular downfall.

Alexander And The Terrible... is an entertaining treat for all ages that doesn't drizzle on the sentimentality too thick.

Oxenbould is an appealingly awkward hero and Carell and Garner offer robust support, embracing the broad physical comedy that their roles demand.

BOOK EARLY FOR Christmas

IS it ever too early to book ahead for Christmas?

Whether you're thinking about a quiet celebration with family and friends or a big work bash, the festive season is one time when you can guarantee that you won't be the only one trying to book ahead.

There's nothing quite like a good Christmas party where everyone really gets into the swing of things, enjoying delicious food and a celebratory drink or two. Equally, there is nothing worse than not being able to find a cab to get home or being told that the wait for a taxi will be over an hour.

Booking ahead with a reputable company can ensure you won't be in that situation. The same goes for great venues. If you want to ensure your favourite restaurant can accommodate you and your friends for a festive meal then you really ought to have booked by now! If you think it's a great restaurant, then the chances are you won't be the only one visiting over the Christmas season. Book in advance and no one will be disappointed.

Even if you're hosting Christmas at home you can help cut down on last minute panic and rising stress levels by making sure you are under control with some forward planning. Why not let your local florist help out with a table centre or door wreath? Order ahead and they can deliver in time for the big day. Of course, it goes without saying that a little advance gift shopping won't go amiss. Why not give a voucher for a beauty treatment this year? Both men and women would appreciate the chance for a little pampering and they can book a treatment after the festivities are over so your gift will be appreciated all the more.

Fully-refurbished Grade II listed home in grounds of half-an-acre

coverproperty

Location The Lodge, GilstonCategory Grade II listed detachedAdditional Four/five bedrooms, two en suites, superb kitchen, recently professionally refurbishedGuide price £1,250,000Agent Fine & Country, 27 North Street, Bishop's Stortford. Telephone (01279) 757500

THE Lodge in Burnt Mill Lane at Gilston is in a relatively quiet location which offers the best of both worlds – the convenience of being able to walk to Harlow Town train station and the feeling of being in a village.

There are two pubs nearby and access to the canal with towpaths along the River Stort.

The Lodge has stunning accommodation which is laid out predominantly on one floor, with four/five bedrooms and two en-suites.

The impressive living room has high vaulted ceilings, oak flooring and a multi fuel stove. It is wired for satellite TV and has an integrated Sonos system installed.

Bi-fold doors lead out onto the paved terrace which links up to the dining room.

Stylish plate glass doors lead to a large family room which in turn leads into the spectacular kitchen and hallway.

The kitchen is fitted with contrasting units and the latest appliances. The dining room also has a vaulted ceiling and bi-fold doors opening onto the paved terrace. A generous utility room is connected to the kitchen.

The master bedroom suite has a dressing room fitted with wardrobes which leads to an en-suite bathroom. There is an additional bedroom with an en-suite shower room and dressing area and two further double bedrooms.

To complete the ground floor there is another reception/bedroom, a cloakroom and the main bathroom which has a large shower and a free-standing bath.

There is one room on the first floor which could be used as either an office or additional bedroom. This has a large store room adjoining it.

The grounds are about half-an-acre and are enclosed by fencing and hedgerow. An electronically operated gate with camera opens to a gravel driveway which provides parking and leads to an oak framed two-bay cart lodge.

For full details or to arrange a viewing, contact Fine & Country on (01279) 757500.

Tracey Waples Property Editor

THE recent round of political party conferences cast the spotlight on the future direction of the housing market.

With a general election not too far away, the so-called mansion tax was Labour's headline-grabbing initiative. The Conservatives, on the other hand, seemed more concerned about helping aspiring young buyers onto the property ladder.

However – and perhaps unsurprisingly – it was the mansion tax that caused the most controversy. This proposed tax would be targeted at owners of houses valued at over £2m and will, Labour claims, raise an extra £1.2bn for the NHS.

According to Zoopla's figures, this would mean levying an average of £11,000 per property per year from the 108,000 homes currently over the £2m threshold.

There has been plenty of speculation about how it might work but so far Labour has failed to provide any concrete details. No-one knows whether it will be a progressive tax banded in some way or if there will be any exemptions – all of which make it very difficult to assess its full impact.

Even so, many people have already claimed that it would be difficult to levy, distort the property market and be an unfair tax on London where 88 per cent of such properties are located, many a long way from being a mansion.

In what is effectively an extension of the Help to Buy scheme, the Conservatives are proposing to incentivise developers to build 100,000 new homes for first-time buyers under 40 years of age.

Participating developers would be given tax breaks and brownfield sites would be released to provide them with a ready source of cheap land.

Who knows exactly what will happen but the uncertainty created by these contrasting approaches could well have a dampening effect on market activity as we edge closer to the election in May next

"Energy Performing Landlords"

The Energy Performance Certificate (EPC) legislation was introduced into the lettings sector in October 2008 and as part of the lettings process, landlords are required to make an EPC available to any prospective tenant.

An EPC is a certificate issued by an authorised Home Energy Assessor, which is valid for ten years. The certificate is illustrated by two graphs that highlight the energy efficiency and environmental impact of the building in question. These are very similar to the graphs found on a new fridge or car. Rated from A-G, where A is the most efficient and G the least efficient, the graphs are designed to raise awareness of the environmental issues associated with the property in an effort to help us become more environmentally aware. The certificate also contains recommended ways of improving the property's energy performance, and landlords would be well advised to take advantage of the various grants available to landlords wishing to improve the energy efficiency of their properties.

The implications of not having an EPC actually go beyond any potential cost saving as a result of efficiency improvements. The Department of Communities and Local Government has warned that if landlords do not provide an EPC to a prospective tenant, then a fixed penalty charge notice will be issued. This could be for as much as £200 per dwelling, per day without a certificate!

We are always aware of our responsibility to help our landlords comply with the increasing burden of legislation. So why not ask us to arrange your EPC today in order to avoid any potential liability. Please feel free to contact us on 01279 401908 for further information.

Hot hatch shows its Abs

■ MATT JOY

FIAT'S evergreen 500 has been turned into a fire-breathing hot hatch before by legendary firm Abarth, but the latest version is now a permanent addition to the range.

Available in semi-sensible Turismo or the 100 per cent barmy Competizione guise tested here, the Abarth 500 is not for the faint of heart.

There's a turbocharged 1.4-litre petrol unit offering a healthy 158bhp but more significantly 170lb.ft of torque. The exterior wears a seriously tough bodykit and alloy wheel options, while there's stiffer suspension and uprated brakes

Looks and image

It's hard not to love the Abarth's looks, even though from some angles it is almost comically pumped up. From a rational point of view, it has the proportions of a rollerskate, with a short wheelbase, big wheels and minimal ride height.

Fact File

Abarth 595
Competizione

£18,315

ENGINE: 1.4-litre unit producing 158bhp
TRANSMISSION: 5-speed manual driving front wheels
PERFORMANCE: Top speed 130mph, 0-62 in 7.4s
ECONOMY: 43.5mpg (combined)
CO² RATING: 155g/km

Any notion that the standard 500 is a car just for girls is dismissed in a flash when it's turned into an Abarth. Those in the know recognise the badge and those that don't are intrigued.

Space and practicality

Don't forget that the Abarth is still a city car, however much its transformation has rendered it better suited to the open road. Up front there is a respectable amount of space for adults but the driving position is better suited to those under six feet in height. In the rear it's kids or adults who are willing, rather than

Behind the wheel

This particular 595 had the optional leather bucket seats, which are terrifically supportive and look superb.

In fact it's very easy to be carried away with the options list, especially when the end result is so much fun.

Drive the 595 in the manner it deserves and you'll revel in the gloriously torquey engine, the hilariously raucous exhaust note and the way in which it dives into bends with limitless enthusiasm.

It's a car that works best when you chuck it about rather than use a delicate hand. Do so and it's a complete riot, as well as remarkably quick.

Turn down the wick and it's a little more like hard work. The great handling comes from the stiff suspension which means bumps are felt rather than heard, but it's a worthwhile trade-off.

Value for money

There's actually quite a bit of competition at this price level, and on the one hand the 595 Competizione is far from cheap.

However, it does come with a lot of kito; items like Xenon headlights and the glorious exhaust system are all standard. Go mad with the options list and you can break the £20k mark.

Who would buy one?

If you can live with the ride quality then the urban girl about town, who wants a 500 more stylish than anyone else, would be very happy with the Abarth 595 – although they might prefer the Turismo model.

The other ideal buyer for the 595 is anyone who wants a small weekend toy to blast away the cobwebs that can also be used in normal circumstances, at least some of the time.

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

THE NEW LOCAL HOME FOR PROPERTY

...no one knows local property like us

harlowstar.co.uk

Your stars with Patrick Arundell to guide you through the week ahead

Aries 21 March - 20 April
You're heading into a potentially no-nonsense week in which you'll have no qualms about what you want and how to go about getting it. The Mars Pluto conjunction can give you the necessary determination to succeed, while Venus and Saturn encourage you to stick with the facts and be realistic when negotiating a deal or the price of a purchase. Call for your in-depth forecast...

Libra 24 September - 23 October
You have a chance to repair difficult family relationships, share resources and deepen intimacy, as a potent aspect encourages positive changes at home. However, avoid being too direct and impatient in this realm, because if you don't it may only prolong any trickier situations. Stay mindful that there's a fine line between being honest and going that bit too far. Call for more...

Taurus 21 April - 21 May
An urge for adventure and a desire to move out of your comfort zone can get you truly excited. If this is something you've been planning, you'll be ready to take it to the limit, whether you're going on vacation, starting a course or researching an idea. Yet, romance wise, you may be fearful of revealing too much, too soon. Call me now Taurus for your love scope in full...

Scorpio 24 October - 22 November
Words have power, so be careful of what you commit to - and of what you say. Certain people may have a super-sharp memory and will keep you to your word. Equally, there's a chance you'll want to keep your ideas and feelings more to yourself. Yet, by the end of the week Venus's change of position can help you to see the benefits of sharing. Call for more news...

Gemini 22 May - 21 June
Joining forces with others and pooling resources might be what's needed to get a business idea or an ambitious project off the ground. As a result, you could benefit from this potentially stable arrangement. Later, Venus dances into Sagittarius, with the chance to bring warmth and harmony into your love life - and a touch of adventure too. Call for your financial forecast in full...

Cancer 22 June - 23 July
A link between Mars and Pluto turns up the heat on relationships, particularly early on this week. This isn't a time to issue ultimatums, but to tread with care if you want to stay on good terms with a significant other. Yet, where romance is concerned, you may feel reluctant to get involved, even if you are attracted to someone. Call me now for your love scope in full...

Leo 24 July - 23 August
You're a force to be reckoned with, as you'll brook no opposition to your plans. If you're determined to make a success of something then you can - no matter how many obstacles you have to navigate to make it happen. You could have a lot on your plate this week, Leo, but the chances are you'll be more than up for the challenge. Call for more news and astral advice...

Virgo 24 August - 23 September
You'll get through whatever projects or plans you have on the agenda productively. This is likely down to an ability to concentrate, plus your natural gift for attention to every detail. Later, Neptune forges ahead, encouraging you and a significant other to reconnect or to bring someone new into your world. Meanwhile, you might relish entertaining at the weekend. Call for more...

Sagittarius 23 November - 21 December
A dynamic alignment in your money zone, suggests you may be tempted to buy a big ticket item, whether you can afford to or not. Yet, Mercury's link with Neptune might mean your judgment is out of kilter - so if you are unsure a trusted friend can provide a valuable sounding board. Meanwhile, Venus's move is going to see you emanating a special magnetism. Call for more...

Capricorn 22 December - 20 January
A conflict between your personal plans and those of the family could cause problems, unless you can find a solution that works for everyone. However, you might find it hard to compromise if you've invested a lot of energy in this idea. Try collaborating with others. If you do, you could benefit in more ways than you might imagine. Call now for more news and astral advice...

Aquarius 21 January - 19 February
You may be in two minds about whether to attempt something or not, and at first doubts can become rooted. Yet, as the week gathers pace you'll likely find your confidence develops and that you're more willing to have a go. Fear could be holding you back from success, but with the right approach, believe you can flourish. Call your prediction line for more news and advice...

Pisces 20 February - 20 March
A friend may show a surprising and not so pleasant side of themselves, which could startle you, at least to begin with. Yet, their antsy mood might be down to a fear of criticism regarding an idea that is dear to them. Later, as Neptune goes direct in your sign, your creative juices will start to flow and soon any flair you care to express can flow superbly well. Call for more advice...

Keeper-less Ladies make point

HARLOW Ladies started without a goalkeeper but still managed to secure a 3-3 draw at home to Romford in the Essex Women's Hockey League.

Linda Rowley could not find her kit so Harlow started with 11 outfield players.

Petra Trimble and Charlotte Byers combined well before Steph Hawes' shot flew wide.

The introduction of Rowley in goal left Harlow short in the middle and one of Romford's mazy dribbling players broke through the Harlow defence before hitting a shot which beat a defender on the line.

Soon after Romford doubled their lead from a well-worked short corner.

The hosts halved the deficit soon after the break. A short corner saw a one-two between Emma Tweddle and Bethan Spencer was slotted in by the latter.

Byers and Georgina

Esterhuysen both went close before a rebound from a save was finished with aplomb by player of the match Spencer.

Byers broke forward from a through ball and rounded the keeper to score Harlow's third.

However, the visitors snatched a point when a player fired in a rebound after an initial save from Rowley.

Sandra Turner's late effort was saved as Harlow were denied a win.

Athletes compete in English Cross Country Champs

ELEVEN Harlow athletes competed in the England Cross Country Championships at Mansfield.

More than 1000 clubs competed across several age groups.

The Harlow athletes were all representing Woodford Green AC.

In the U17 women's race with 80 starting teams, Stewards pupil Rosie Poole (15) ran the first leg to place 59th over 2.5km in 10min 28sec.

On the last leg of her relay, Alicia McArdell (17) took over in 53rd but a fine run improved her team to 37th in 10:10.

In the U13 boys race over three legs of 2km, Albie Wickenden, an 11-year-old Year 7 student at Stewards, ran 8:20, bringing his club in 47th.

On the last leg, Burnt Mill student Hayden Maleary (12) ran a fine leg to improve 13 places, clocking 7:42 and 34th overall.

In the U17 boys race over three legs of 3km, 16-year-old Canaan Solomon clocked 9:34 to help his team to 16th out of 100.

Georgina Hamdford (11), a St Nicholas student, ran 9:26 and came home in 75th. The team finished 62nd.

These athletes are set to compete at Liverpool at the end of November in the McCain Euro trials.

A BRIT SPECIAL: Desmond Douglas, and inset, meets BATTs members at the half-term camp. Below, Douglas in his hey-day

Father of GB ping-pong coaches at BATTs club

ENGLAND table tennis legend Desmond Douglas passed on his knowledge and experience to the next generation of players at a half-term coaching event at Old Harlow's BATTs club.

The 11-time national singles champion, who reached number seven in the world at his peak, led the sessions alongside coaches from the club in Elderfield.

Dozens of youngsters from BATTs and neighbouring clubs reaped the benefit of his teaching during three days of sessions.

It was the second time Douglas had visited the club, after summer training camps organised by BATTs coach Adam Nutland proved a great success.

BATTs player George Campbell (12) said: "He came here last summer and I didn't know who he was then, but now I know he's very important in our sport.

He's the one who set the benchmark for what somebody from England can do.

"He's helped with my forehand. I used to hit it mostly cross-court but now I can play it to different places, and he's helped me with my movement around the table."

Ella Patel (17) said: "I know he was number seven in the world and number one in England and I know he was someone who got people excited about table tennis."

"He's very attentive but not overbearing. If he sees something wrong he will come and tell you but then let you work it out."

"He's helped me with my serve and my blocking. It was good to practise serving in a match situation but with one player serving for the whole match."

Douglas was impressed by the skills of the youngsters, saying: "They're pretty good - they're keen and willing to learn, which makes it easier to use my experience and knowledge to show them different ways to do things and how to play better table tennis."

"If you can see somebody improving, that's where the joy of coaching comes from."

Meanwhile, BATTs were delighted to attract a huge entry of youngsters from all round the area at the first grass roots tournament of the season.

This was a chance for beginners with limited tournament experience to get their first taste of competition against children from other clubs.

The club's visitors included parties from Southend, Ilford, North Herts, Bedford, Braintree, Broxbourne and Bishop's Stortford, as well as a dozen of the Old Harlow club's own juniors.

It was a full and exciting day's play on 14 tables, with a round robin group for all players in the morning, and then another after lunch.

The tournament was then rounded off by a mini-knockout for the eight most successful players from the two group competitions.

There were some extremely close matches in the quarter-finals, where the contenders were: TJ O'Sullivan, Callum Stepsky, Esher Bahara, William Bettley, Luke Manning, Luca Bailey, Ed Crawford and eight-year-old wonder kid Sophie Chiang.

In the semi-finals TJ overcame William in a very tough duel and Sophie surprised Luca to come out on top in a really close match.

In the final the experience of TJ was too strong for Sophie.

Derby delight

HARLOW Ladies seconds stretched their gap at the top of the Essex Hockey League division four with a 2-0 victory at second-placed Romford seconds.

The hosts denied Harlow with some frantic defending in the first half.

Taniska Naidoo's shot hit a post after the break, but Rowena Rickett picked up a stray ball and rifled a shot at the backboard to open the scoring near the end.

Naidoo's deflected effort made it 2-0 five minutes from time.

Woe for Cowley

GOLFER Gabriella Cowley missed out on qualification for the 2015 European Ladies Tour when she finished 11 shots adrift of the final spot when competing in a pre-qualifier in Morocco.

She produced scores of 79, 83, 83 and 76 in the event in Rabat, which concluded last weekend.

Win for Harlow

HARLOW are third in the East Men's Hockey League division 6SE.

The side won 4-1 at home to Havering on Saturday.

Fightback has sub plot

A TENSE derby ended with Harlow Ladies suffering a narrow 14-5 defeat at Chelmsford in the Women's RFU National Challenge South East division one north on Sunday.

Harlow started the game strongly, making the most of the downhill slope, and spent the opening 10 minutes camped in the Chelmsford 22.

A Chelmsford infringement at the breakdown allowed Leah Dixon to open the scoring.

She took the penalty quickly and dived over the line to score before Chelmsford had time to organise their defence.

The conversion was missed. However, there was a setback for the Lady Rams when hooker Carla Marshall-Souch went off injured. With only one substitute available

Harlow had to play the rest of the match with Katherine Mockeridge at lock and Charlotte Smith as flanker, both for the first time in these positions.

Full-back Dani McKenna made some penetrating runs but Chelmsford were able to recycle the ball safely.

Chelmsford made the most of a full bench of substitutions in the second half.

The home full-back used her pace to out-flank the Rams' defensive line and scored two converted tries.

A third was on the cards but McKenna produced a brilliant tackle to put the full-back into touch.

Lock Emily Wooller and prop Lorna Hunter continually took the ball over the gain line, but Harlow were unable to score.

THE Rams withstood a second-half onslaught to defeat London division three north east leaders Cantabragian.

Harlow produced a fantastic display in the first half on Saturday and led 21-3 as the table-toppers were blown away.

The Cambridge side fought back well after the break, but Harlow held on to record a 27-18 win.

Harlow were boosted by the return of experienced back James McFerran, who had been unavailable.

The visitors had dominated much of the opening spell, and it was against the run of play when Harlow scored their first try on eight minutes.

Rams picked up possession, and after a kick ahead it was that man McFerran who touched down near the corner.

Ryan McGlone converted a tricky kick for 7-0.

Cantabs replied when Simon Taylor kicked a penalty to make it 7-3.

On 21 minutes Harlow scored their second try.

The Rams won a Cantabs line-out and after the ball was recycled, hooker Dan Bolt grounded the ball.

McGlone converted another difficult kick out wide to put the hosts 14-3 up.

Seven minutes before the break number eight Kain Claridge's excellent short pass put McGlone clear and he nipped through on the left flank to score Harlow's third try.

McGlone kicked the conversion.

Cantabs exploded into the life after the break with a quick try to put the game back in the balance.

Finley Wilson, surprisingly dropped after seven tries in his last two games, sprinted through on the right side out-flanking the slow Rams defence.

New Zealand no.10 Dwayne Iese tried to take a conversion from a difficult position, but appeared to slip as the ball went 20 yards to the left rather than forward, rolling along the ground.

Cantabs' second try on 49 minutes came after sustained pressure.

Iese set up Andrew Tilley who touched down under the posts.

From eight yards out, Cantabs' comical kicks continued as Iese struck the right post.

Harlow led 21-13 at this stage.

McGlone missed a penalty on 56 minutes.

Rob Mackie was fortunate not to be sin-binned for persistently raking down an opponent's back near the hour. This was spotted by the furious Cantabs' No.6 who had words with the Rams player.

McGlone kicked a penalty after the dust had cleared on the earlier melee, and this put Harlow into a commanding 24-13 lead.

Cantabs broke and scored a try on 63 minutes to cut the lead to six points.

Fijian centre Samisone Kididiromu fed Iese and he passed to Francois Eve, who touched down near the posts.

Claridge blasted his team-

A third conversion was missed by the Cambridgeshire side, this time Wilson erring.

These three kicks in total would have levelled the scores at this stage.

Harlow put daylight between the two sides as McGlone kicked a penalty for offside to make it 27-18 on 67 minutes.

A key moment came and went on 73 minutes.

Cantabs broke and seemed set to score as their Fijian centre Kididiromu broke through and had two men to his left with the Harlow defence AWOL.

But the selfish Islander held on to the ball too long and a covering tackle was made before the referee awarded Harlow a penalty.

McGlone's penalty a minute from time was missed.

There was then several minutes of stoppage time, during which Harlow's veteran centre Francis Brown was sent to the sin-bin.

Despite this the Rams defended heroically to record their best win of the season.

The jubilant smiles and hugs at the end between the Harlow players, told its own story - this was a significant win for Harlow as they bid for promotion this term.

HARLOW: Ephgrave (R. Trearner 75), Bolt (M. Bowering 15), Prindville, Twiner, Unwin, Roberts, Drake (Hawkins 15), Claridge, Woodington, Goodey, McGlone, L. Bowering, Brown, McFerran, Mackie.

Dionne clocks top time as 20-year club record falls

Jones was 82nd and first female veteran 45 in an excellent 44min 01sec, beating the HRC Vet 45 record which had stood since 1995.

Rob Lowe was 12th out of 575 finishers in a superb 38:18.

Meanwhile, an exhausting trek along 30 miles of River Stort towpath was the daunting mission for several members of Harlow Running Club.

The Stort 30 took runners from Bishop's Stortford to Roydon and back again.

Harlow's Lyndon Cooper finished in 13th place out of 189 in an excellent 4hr, 2min and 49sec.

He was followed home by Darren Coates (40th in 4.33:53), Gary Godfrey (42nd in 4.34:21), Steve Ambrose (60th in 4.57:04), Matt Jones (94th in 5.24:42), Andy Ramage (107th in 5.31:21), Frank Pardoe (108th in 5.31:27) and Vicky Calver (183rd in 7.03:44).

Meanwhile at a very wet and undulating Stevenage Marathon, Brendon Maclean was 97th out of 232 finishers in 3.59:29 and Holly Nairn was 149th in a personal best (PB) time for the distance of 4.25:35.

At the same venue in the Stevenage Half Marathon, John Tennant finished in 112th place out of 546 finishers and was first veteran 60 in 1.39:40.

He was followed by Vicky Steadman (184th in 1.49:56) and Andy Kinney (438th in 2.16:17).

At the Serpentine 5K in London's Hyde Park, Steve Murtagh was fifth out of 248 finishers and first veteran 50 in an excellent 17:04.

At the Gunpowder Park run 5K at Waltham Abbey, Rick Ricketts was sixth out of 100 finishers in a superb 19:46.

At the Enfield Park run 5K, Paul Lee was 22nd out of 110 finishers in 22:35.

Hope for Rams as Foreman targets top three spot

RAMS co-manager Steve Foreman is convinced his side can bank on a top three spot this season – if they continue to produce performances like last Saturday.

Harlow's 27-18 victory over leaders Cantabrigians cut the gap on the top two to four points, heading into a week's break.

"This win just keeps us close to the top three," he beamed after the match.

Foreman believes the return of experienced back James McFerran was key. He got the crucial first try against Cantabs.

"We have found some consistency. We have got some players back from injury, and other absentees," Foreman said. "We are starting to get some back-up. The only thing we have got to sort out is the scrum."

Part of the scrum last Saturday was prop Paul Prindiville, and what he lacks in fitness as age takes its toll on the veteran front rower, he certainly makes up for in nous and experience.

Prindiville, along with non-playing director of rugby Lee Harron, are the last links to one of the greatest Rams team ever, when Graham Richards' men were riding high in London one north.

At that time, back in 1998, Harlow played a division above their close neighbours Bishop's Stortford.

Now four divisions separate the teams as the Bishops ply their trade just three divisions below the likes of Saracens and Leicester.

Back then the Rams were inspired by the captaincy of Jon Locke, as he drove the side onwards and upwards.

Nowadays he is the headteacher at Sawbridgeworth's Leventhorpe School.

But the seeds of hope are being sown at Ram Gorse, and some of the youngsters are starting to have an impact on the first team.

One such youngster is young back Ryan McGlone, and Foreman has been impressed with the kicking of the young winger.

McGlone has big boots to fill, replacing fly-half Michael Dobson with the kicking duties this term.

He has slotted over plenty of difficult kicks in tricky conditions.

He converted threes tries against Cantabs, including the try that he scored.

He also kicked over two penalties for an overall haul of 17 points, capping an excellent day for the impressive winger.

Foreman says the team has worked hard to eradicate the memory of the hefty 51-5 defeat to Upminster on September 27.

"We lost our way at Upminster but in other games we have kept our focus. We are unbeaten at home," he added.

Crunch match looms and Hawks Need win

Title D-Day next up but boss says it's not a two-horse race yet

BY ALAN SCOTT

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

DANNY Chapman is refusing to rule Thurrock out of the Ryman North title race – as the top two go head-to-head at The Harlow Arena on Saturday.

The Hawks boss knows that defeat on Saturday to Needham Market will leave the Suffolk side five points clear at the top, and his side with a mountain to climb.

Harlow Town are unbeaten in the league after 17 games, and have a match in hand on Needham Market, who moved above the Hawks with a 2-0 win at Waltham Abbey on Tuesday, watched by Chapman.

But the Harlow manager says it's not a two-horse race yet.

"I don't think you can count Thurrock out of it. And you always get another one that pushes on after Christmas," Chapman said.

The Harlow boss has every confidence in his side, and with the likes of Dave Cowley, Alex Read, James Smith, Junior Appiah and Jarod Small, he knows he has plenty of match-winners at his disposal.

A change in position for Cowley, who has hit eight goals and made 10 assists this term after switching over from the wing to play in a central role, is paying dividends for the Hawks.

"We have four or five who can win you games. Needham have players like that as well. Alex [Read] can always nick goals. Dave [Cowley] had always played out wide, even when he played for us before," said Chapman.

"But we felt [Cowley] could play in the middle and he has been brilliant. This year he is really enjoying his football and that's because he's playing in the middle of the park.

He has produced stuff which is top drawer."

Victory for Harlow would put them a point clear of Needham and send out an important psychological message.

Chapman added: "We have every chance of winning the game. It just depends whether we turn up on the day."

Harlow plan to make the day a community event, and there will be ten matches involving youth football teams before the big match kicks off at 3pm.

Chapman said: "The supporters are really up for it. They will be there with their banners. It will be a fantastic atmosphere. We hope we can give them something to cheer about come five o'clock."

Harlow is certainly a very happy camp at the moment. "When you are top everyone wants to join you and no-one wants to leave," beamed the Hawks boss.

Harlow centre-half Dave Kendall, a substitute at Lewes after recovering from broken ribs, is battling for a starting place.

Winger Shane Stamp (ankle) is doubtful.

FA Trophy exit after 'worst display of season'

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman labelled Saturday's FA Trophy defeat to Ryman premier strugglers Lewes as their 'worst of the season'.

Luke Blewden's strike 46 seconds after half-time settled a dour affair on the south coast.

Chapman said: "It was probably our worst performance of the season. We never got going, we never got the basics right."

A win would have given Harlow Town £2,700 FA prize money.

Chapman gave a debut to former

Barnet defender Warren Goodhind, signed from Cheshunt, and the Hawks manager said his display was the one bright point of a dire afternoon.

"Warren was the positive of the day. He had not played a competitive game for two months. He will be a fantastic help for the younger players, especially defensively."

Lewes dominated the first half, but the closest they came to scoring was when Sam Crabb's curling effort was superbly tipped around a post by Harlow keeper Ed Thompson.

The breakthrough came when a soft back pass was picked up by Blewden and he chipped the ball over the marooned Hawks keeper.

Thompson made another excellent save late on from Lewes substitute Elliot Romain's low drive.

"It was a bad day at the office.

We have to wipe it out of our heads," bemoaned Chapman.

Meanwhile, the Hawks have fixed up several matches.

They will host Billericay Town in the Essex Senior Cup fourth round on Tuesday.

The Ryman North division fixture at Thamesmead has been rearranged for Tuesday December 16.

The Robert Dyas League Cup game at Ryman premier side Hampton & Richmond will be on Saturday November 15.
